Bibliothèque curieuse, 1. 18 (1780) p. 341; Burgerdijk & Niermans, Catalogue no. 48 (1800) p. 224, quotes a later edition: Gronovius d. vornehmster hooft-kettersen, Leyden, J. C. van Dorp, 1622. According to Clément, a notice of the edition of 1607 in "Quaestiones avestinae d'Altena (d. c. Altona) gelehrte anstalten (71)" 1746, states that a prefatory dedication to the states van Zeland, which is omitted in all later editions and translations, "telt conjecture que Henri Louis Haestena on est l'auteur". An English translation from the Latin, by J. D. (John Davies) is appended to Rom. Alexander. A view of all religious. London, 1622; republished 1623 and later.

Prophecies on the European war, ascribed to one Hieronymus Agathangelos, monk of the 13th cent., under whose name Theodolitus Polseus published a series of prophecies on historical events from 1453 to ca. 1743. Manuscript editions of these prophecies were kept in circulation among the Greeks, especially during the end of the 18th and the earlier decades of the 19th cent. The earliest known printed edition, called the 26, appears to be that of Athens, 1857.

The loyal petitions of 1666. Remarks read before the Massachusetts historical society, June 11, 1891. By William S. Appleton. Cambridge (Mass.) J. Wilson & son, 1891.

10 p. 24^{cm}.
The government of Massachusetts, by refusing to recognize the authority of the royal commissioners Nicolls, Carr and Cartwright, drew down on themselves a demand from the crown for explanation. The petition alluded to were protests against the further decision of the General court to ignore this mandate. Appleton's purpose is to justify the signers of the protests.

The address to the reader implies that this work was translated from French sources furnished, partly in manuscript, by their author, whose name is not given. The contents, however, indicate that the supposed original work was largely a compilation from a number of 17th century gardening books.

Archäologischer anzeiger. no. 1-228; jan. 1849-dec. 1867.

(In Archäologische zeitung. Berlin, 1849-67. 38 x 20 1/2". 7-38. jahrg. 1849-67. Illus., plates, plan)

Notice concerning matters of archaeological interest, including reports of the Deutsches archäologisches institut and the Archäologische gesellschaft zu Berlin, bibliographies, etc., were published in the Archäologische zeitung from its beginning in 1849; from 1849-67 this material formed a separate section entitled Archäologischer anzeiger, issued in numbers and independently pagged, but bound with the Arch. zeitung. (cf. above entry); from 1868-86 the notice, etc., were again incorporated in the text of the Arch. zeitung. In 1868 the Archäologische zeitung was superseded by Jahrbuch des Kaiserlich deutschen archäologischen instituts; the first 3 years of the latter had no section devoted to archaeological notices and reports, though the bibliographical part was included; since 1869 a supplement has been issued serially with the Jahrbuch, under title "Archäologischer anzeiger", the entry for which follows.
